China-Europe rail freight continues to soar

Written by Kevin Smith

China-Europe intermodal freight is a major success story of recent years. Kevin Smith considers the factors driving continuing development and the challenges that trans-Eurasian services face to realise their full potential.

RAIL freight trains rarely generate main stream media attention. Yet the January 18 arrival at DB Cargo's London Eurohub terminal in Barking, east London, was slightly different.

The 34 TEU-train had travelled more than 12,000km to Britain from Yiwu in eastern China, and was the first-ever freight service to complete the journey. Taking 18 days to pass through eight countries, the train received a VIP welcome, with Chinese lion dancers and TV crews from around the world gathering to mark its arrival.

Such strong interest is due to the potential of trans-Eurasian rail freight to British logistics and forwarding companies. The journey took around half the
